Strategy

Our system is a crisis management system that helps connect volunteering related organizations and foundations to volunteers who wants to help in an easy and simple way.

Furthermore we thought of our product as a social media platform for volunteers where they can communicate with each other and maybe use the platform to form a community for them in the same region. Also they can ask questions and get answers from people who are related to the work.

Strategy

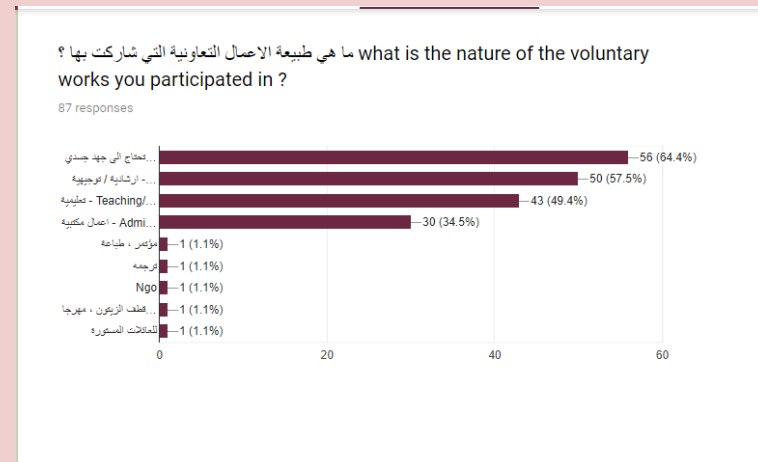

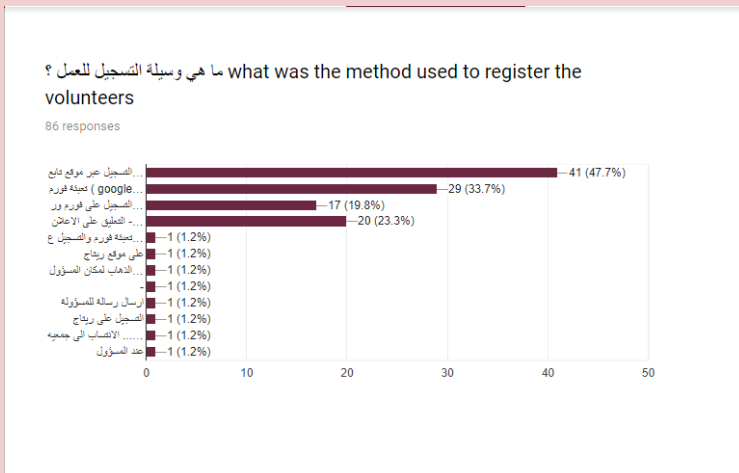

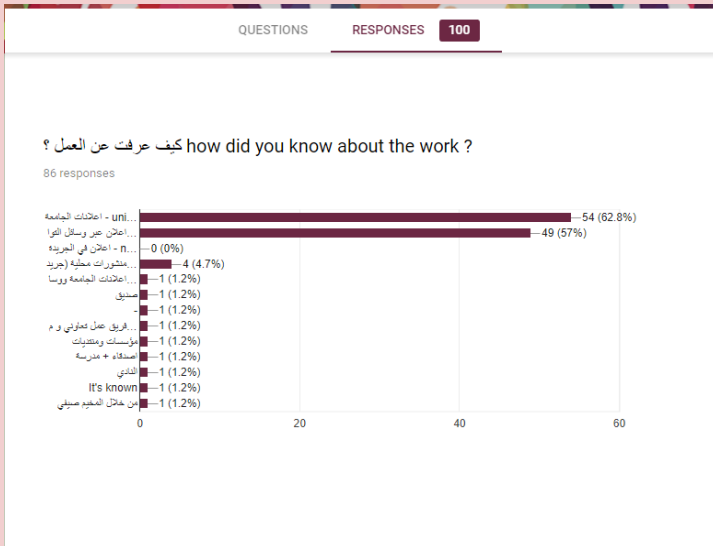

The idea came as we faced a lot of problems during our work with the local voluntary organizations here in Palestine. And we went with a website because its more spread and can be accessed easily .

And to build a solid website that serves the needs of volunteers and voluntary organizations we've made a survey aimed to see what problems the volunteers faces during there work and to see what is easy for voluntary organizations to access volunteers and contact with them. That was made by a google form that was shared on social media.

We considered the outcomes from the survey and used them as features in modeling the website.

AN INSIGHT

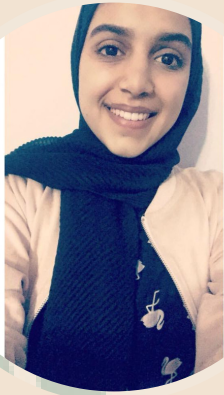

We tried to make our model simple to use, All the volunteer needs to do is to sign up and fill his/her basic information and what skills do they have or want to work with and if they have some difficulty to decide there is a box with the most common voluntary work as the survey outcome indicated, And the region they are from so they could get notifications on work in their region . And even if not registered we made a bar for searching voluntary work by the country they want, just by choosing the country and the ads of organizations will appear next to it, and we wants to connect that with google earth. Also we put a bar for chatting and there is an ask section if any volunteer wants to ask about the work they're doing.

Future Vesion

For our future plans we see our product as a mobile compatible website and a mobile app so our product will be in hands of all users and we thought it would be nice if we made it as a bot that is needs to be developed by artificial intelligence .
